IHPE Pittsburgh 2011

Capture your home region in 1 shot

The International Heritage Photographic Experience (IHPE) is an international photography project for youth to discover and appreciate their home region's landscapes and monuments. It celebrates individual expression through photography. Last year, Pittsburgh was the first U.S. city in history to join the IHPE project, which has included 200,000 youth in 66 countries. Last year, two young Pittsburgh photographers won a trip to the awards ceremony in Europe and had their photos exhibited around the world! This year, it could be YOU.
